Missed Assessments Due to Medical Emergencies

" In the event that a medical emergency or severe illness causes the student to miss a course assessment, students are responsible for contacting their associate dean as soon as possible to report the medical issue and provide documentation certified by the university health services. The associate dean of the school/college to which the student belongs will arrange for course instructors to be notified. Course instructors will provide an opportunity to make up the missed assessment or provide an alternative arrangement to account for the missed work."
